The Secret of Livable Glamour

Here's a bit of fair warning: Don't look through Lisa Gilmore's portfolio unless you're prepared to find yourself in a stupor of admiration and wonder.

Everything she designs speaks with a bold invitation: "Come on in and throw up your feet," it seems to say.

If you get lost inside the glamour, don't worry. It's all part of her grand plan to help you find yourself again. She wants you to see how your greatest desires, no matter how simple or how luxurious, can turn into livable glamour. Her way of uncovering your unique style includes all the savvy of the best designers: intuition combined with a sharp eye for design and detail. She then takes those skills up a notch or two by creating a vision board that reflects every ounce of your tastes and aesthetic, from hair styles and destination resorts to fashion preferences and floral arrangements.

"This is about creating an entire lifestyle," says Lisa. "My clients don't want the cookie cutter design. They want someone to push them towards something they wouldn't be brave enough to choose on their own, and they want a team that makes it easy for them to realize their vision."
